

New North Kent Business

A new sales and service company being formed in North Kent is offering what it claims is a permanent cure to that old bugaboo — faucet drip!

Sales Associates, a manufacturers' agents organization specializing in sales to the construction and industrial trades, is offering the "in home" service for a nominal fee.

Basically, the process involves the installation of a stainless steel valve seat and the replacement of the conventional washer with an extremely durable "space age" type of plastic washer. The process works on practically all conventional washer type faucets.

According to Ray Dion, founder of the company, the root cause of faucet drip is corrosion and pitting of conventional valve seats. This, in turn, chews up ordinary hard rubber washers. New washers are quickly rendered ineffective and the dripping returns.

The above process cures the cause of the problem, ending the nuisance permanently. The company offers a guarantee for as long as you occupy your present home.

SOECO Announces New Dealer

Soil Enterprise Corporation of Stoneville, Mississippi, and Michigan Farm Products Company of Grand Rapids announce the appointment of Parsons Farm Service, 4731 Porter Hollow Drive, Rockford, as the new dealer for SOECO bacterial seed inoculants in Kent and Montcalm counties.

Buddy Burrus, sales manager for the Mississippi company which produces SOECO, said, "We are very pleased to add Parsons Farm Service to our growing list of SOECO dealers and look forward to a long, pleasant relationship with this firm and its customers."

Eddie Parsons, owner of the local firm, added, "We feel that SOECO is an exciting new product line and believe that our new association with Soil Enterprise and Michigan Farm Products is especially timely for spring crops. The results of SOECO bacterial inoculants on wheat and corn have been particularly impressive. We will have an ample supply of SOECO inoculants available for our customers."

Parsons will have full information regarding price and instructions for use, as well as results of yield tests and farmers' experience with SOECO. This material will be available to farmers interested in inoculating their seed for the spring planting.

The local firm will be working directly with Michigan Farm Products, independent SOECO distributor for the state of Michigan.
